

Fins:

- One of the dirty dozen concert songs that have to be played.
- Still waiting for arms closing like a sharks mouth thingy to catch on.
- A two-for-one song at Buckeye Lake in 1996, Jimmy played this one twice after an inflatable shark was thrown around the crowd. Buckeye Lake was a horrible place to be after a concert.
- I can still here the voices of my beloved friends who were kind enough to make (cut, burn, rip, ... is make correct?) a cassette of Volcano for me. Just as the last chord in Fins is played they screamed into the stylist (that's the needle that stayed into the grooves of the LP) ..."GREG SUCKS"

Volcano:

- Always a fun concert song, this one I don't get tired of hearing.
- When Jimmy played this song at Buckeye Lake in 1996, the prop volcano, that I was only yards away from, was set off and was supposed to glow and eventually extinguish itself. It didn't. I could see a crowd frenzy start to occur and thought it would really suck to die in Ohio.
- Best line in song:
  - Lava come down soft and hot.
"You better lava me now or lava me not.
- Where were you during the 444 day Iranian hostage stand-off? Definitely dated with that line.
  - I don't want to land on no Ayatollah.
I got nothin' more to say.

Treat Her Like a Lady:

- Excellent song that we were lucky to hear at the Pine Knob in 2000 since it's only been played 14 times in concert.
- Until I read what Jimmy's thoughts were on this song and why he wrote it (Thank You Al Gore and the Internet), I always thought this was about boats and the home sailors have on boats and how a sailor should treat his boat like a lady and crap like that.

Stranded on a Sandbar:

- Definitely not a concert song but I would love to hear this live in a smaller venue like the magic bag. Two thumbs up.

Chanson Pour Les Petits Enfants

- This song is fun and educational. A little bit of French class while you sing.
- Remember the cassette that was made for me? I will always remember the somber, relaxing atmosphere in the Central Michigan dorm room with Cap'n Schmoe listening to the recording through head phones. The song ends, Schmoe's asleep at the wheel and the sound of the needle scratching (real loud) is observed by us all.

Survive:

- I guess I just noticed how this the next song starts out Funny in light of the event that occurred on the “flip-side” of recording Volcano.
  - I play the stereo loud
When I'm away from the maddening crowd
- Another excellent song that we heard live in 1998 at the once glorious Pine Knob Amphitheater (only been played 19 times in concert).
- I guess the closest thing to surviving was the start of this year’s Michigan Football Season. Thank Goodness that’s over.

Lady I can’t Explain:

- Every album needs it stupid love song.

Boat Drinks:

- Killer Kut
- Definitely in my top 10 (ok, ok , wait for the stupid laughter to stop)
Probably the best start to any Buffett song. It always has me reaching for the volume control when it comes on.
- Give me a boat drink and life will be good.
- This was that song that hooked my Dad into Buffett.

Dreamsicle:

- Killer Kut
- I would want to hear this one live but it doesn’t seem to lend itself to the stage. This would be one of those “get up and go to the bathroom songs” if you didn’t know what it was.

Sending the Old Man Home:

- I like it, but wouldn't really miss it too much.

The good days and good old Buffett songs that are forever implanted in my brain's ipod.

I wore out the cassette tape for sure on this one.

Will always be a favorite
